eParkomat's aim is to become the world's leading parking information provider without owning a single parking lot. Started in 2014 by T-Mobile Czech's employees Pavel and Petr, eParkomat partnered with both UQBATE and Deutsche Telekom from the very beginning. In 2016, Pavel and Petr spun-out their project to become a legal entity. Only a few months later, they negotiated two financing rounds, which both are big deals. While the first investor is Skoda Auto, the well-known car manufacturer from Czech, Telekom's hubraum also invested a serious amount of money into eParkomat!

eParkomat's algorithm accurately predicts a parking situation in real-time by analyzing data from mobile devices' moves within a mobile network. Accompanied by data from other sources, the accuracy is being increased even more.
